COAL IN SANDAKAN BAY.

Mr. Hart Buck

The interest attaching to this subject has been revived during the past month by the arrival of a coal miler, Mr. Mo gan, who has been enguged by the Sandakan Coal Syndicate to examine the coal stratas of Sandakan. Mr. Morgan has a few coolies already at work and is going down upon the seam in two places above the Leila Road. The Commissioner of Lands took Mr. Morgan to see the coal outcrop in the interest, most of the ponies' jumping powers be. Bourgya River in Labak Bay and Mr. Walker has rendered a report based on the notes made out all jumped extremely well, the round being by him on this visit and on his researches of finished without a single spill or a pony refus- 1888 and previously, from which it would ap ing. On getting away Buddha led first but pear that a very extensive coal basin exists of was quickly picked up by Caswell who led for of which the outcrop is visited at Sandakan on the first time round. On the second round, after the South, the River Simiang in the North Bay taking the first wall jump, Caswell began to on the West, which we referred to in our come up at a rattling page followed by Enchanter. September number of last year and at Bongaya Enchanter passed Caswell and kept the lead till on the North. The outcrop of grit under the the finish winning pretty easily, Caswell being Balhalla Range is the limit on the East from second and Venturous third. which four points the strates all dip to a common centre, the greatest inclination being at the for all beaten Subscription Griffins of this south end of the basin. Some idea of the extent season; entrance, 35, to go to second pony; of the district included may be gathered from the distance from Bukit Parang (600 feet) at Bougaya to Leila Peak (840 feet) at Sandakan which is 50 miles north to south and from Balhalla (640 feet) to the River Simiang (sea level) which is 16 miles east, to west. The question to be determind by Mr. Morgan is whether or not a paying coal field exists. The pookets found by Mr. Walker in the North Bay gave up to a ton and a half in one solid block of good coal, The Sandakan Shale seams yield a good looking coal of some sixteen inches in thickness and if the whole thickness of shale, as seen at the outcrop, turns into good coal a paying seam may result. Mr. Morgan proposes to run down some distance on and Oamaru third. On passing the Rock the seams and put this question to immediate Rayon d'or followed by Bolero and Laufer be- test. The Syndicate have found sufficient funds gan to come up and on passing the village were to for the purpose and we understand they have the front. On turning into the straight Bolero secured an efficient manager in Mr. Morgan and took the lead, Laufer coming into second place, we hope to record that they have met with the success merited by their enterprise. The great value attaching to Naval Coal stations has lately been forcibly shewn by Lord Brassey and it would enormously increase the value of the magnificent harbour we possess if it could be

It is ais intention to revive the sugar industry in the country, as also the timber trade with Australia which he initiated five years ago. A steamer, the Menmuir, of the Eastern and Australian Company's fleet, has been chartered to call in at Sandakan en route from Port Darwin. We welcome back Baron de Lissa, and wish him every success. What the Royal Geographical Society of Australia have forwarded to Baron da Lissa n druft of £100 towards endeavouring to obtain some information regarding the fauna, flore, etc. of the high lands at Kina Balu and its neighbourhood. Baron de Lissa has, we believe, placed himself in communication with His Excellency the Governor on the subject, and is endeaveuring to secure the services of a well known geologist and naturalist residing in Sandakan to carry out the object and desires of the Society. An unpleasant affair occurred last week on the eganan estate in Darvel Bay on which a number of Iraus and Sulus have for some time been engaged attap making. It oppears that during the temperary absence of Mr. Stephens, the manager, the transhad by false pretences obtained payment for 150,000 attaps which they had never supplied Whon Mr. Stephenson his return discovered the fraud he demanded repayment of the money, which the Irans agreed to refund. PEKING.5th February. The young Emperor seems, from the frequent edicts in the Peking Gazette, to be trying to carry out energetically the administration of the government. It is a great pity his well-intentioned efforts are not seconded by abla officials Reform is said to be impossible and no one attempts it. There is no one who dares to tell the Emperor plainly how matters stand. The officials with but fow exceptions are selfishly occupied in providing for themselves and their families: the interests of the Emperor or the State or the people do not concern them. If reform is attempted it is only partial and for a brief season-matters soon lapso into the old condition. The people admire the energy of Miningthe Emperor but consider all efforts at amelioration of the present condition of abuses as futile. The decree calling upon the police of the capital to exercise a strict watch over the gambling and opium dans with the view of suppressing crime has temporarily had the of closing these places. But ere long, these shops will re-open and things go on just as before till some serious crime again calls attention to the subject and then a similar warning will probably be issued ... The policy pursued by the Emperor in strictly forbidding settling in Manchuria against the recommendation for the removal of the restrictions against settlers from other parts of the Empire per 'v Shantung, is a retrograde one. Noin . Her reigns these lands were exclusively ast an art as pasture lands and hunting grounds or the Bannermen, and so long as China remaised isolated it did not perhaps much matter Trust & Loan Co. ... or these three Maucharian provinces were peopled sparsely or not; but now the whole aspect of China's northern frontiers and her relations with the neighbouring national have changed and the influx of Chinese in large numbers is most desirable. The people of the famine and inundated provinces of the north require to be settled; the neighbouring provinces of China proper refused to be burdened with them, and the rich lands of Manchuria are lying uncultivated and exposed to grave danger. It is a measure of strategic importance to people these regions with an industrious population. The Chiness government will in another decade or so doubtless learn the folly of their present policy. To expect the Bannermen themselves to introduce agriculture or to improve their condition or to increase their population is vain; the experience of the last century proves this. We have the telegraph now running through Manchuriathe iron horse must follow to enable the produce the country to be exported to suitable markets. With the advent of the railway, the settling of the country and the advantageous agriculture of the sail and the export of the produce would turn a barren wilderness into a fruitful garden, relieve the congestion and Witomtock ... | 30.23 famishing provinces of the north and strongthen and enrich the Empire. On the evening of January Slat a paper entitled The Monetary System of China. by Prince Lobanow, was read by the Secretary in the unavoidable absence of the writer. The history of Chinese money was ably sketched, and altogether an important contribution was made to the subject. The paper it is hoped will be published in : the Society's Transactions. The President remarked on the great difference between the monetary systems of the east and west-noting the great lack of governmental administration in China, the people and the different provinces being left so free, and the infinitesimally small value of the coins, indicating the smallness of trade. Dr. Martin supplemented the paper by interesting historical remarks on the ourrency. referring to leather and iron money, the present issue of the new regulation cash for the capital, &c. Dr. Dudgeon also took up the question of the iron cash, pointing out that in no sense could it be said that iron cash were substituted for copper cash in the reign of Hien-feng, that such cash were cast in large numbers and were intended to be put in circulation but that the people refused to take them, and therefore it could hardly begaid that they were ever in oircolation The smelting of these cash was referred to somewhat minutely by this and the mint at Canton established by the late Viceroy, Highest open air temp beautiful specimens of the minted silver, coins having been sent to the Emperor; of the various plans proposed by foreigners to give China a new currency of her own in copper, silver, and gold, of the proposal to make foreign gold coins legal tender in China. The late panic at the capital when the change in the currency was contemplated was detailed by this and the previous speaker and wasen tered into still more minutely by Mr. Jordan, who quoted from the Peking Gazette the various edicts that had been issued regarding this question. Dr. Dudgeon thought the smallness of the value of the cash indicated the cheapness of living and the great industry of the people, mentioning that one Peking cash would buy as much as a half-penny in England, that is, the necessaries of life are five Geo.
